

RIGHT TO THE POINT

General Rutherford Defends the Veterans

IN THE SOLDIERS' HOME

He Believes They Are Entitled to the Franchise and Given His Opinion With Force.

In yesterday's Democrat Gen. L. G. Rutherford published a card on the question of the right to vote of the veterans living in the Soldiers' home. The full text of his card, which is addressed to the editor of the Democrat, is as follows:

Your telegraphic dispatch from Lansing of the legislative proceedings seem to call for some attention from me. The subject under consideration was whether an amendment to the constitution to allow the inmates of the Soldiers' home the right to vote in the precinct where the home is located should be submitted. From the report of the proceedings in the Democrat, another amendment should also be submitted which, if adopted, would preclude at least some members of the legislature from voting.

The report says: "The debate upon the resolution became heated." Why there should be any debate for any debate is past my comprehension. It is true that the right of the veterans of the Soldiers' home to vote under our constitution is open to question. I say "open to question" because I am not yet satisfied that they have the right now, but let us admit the fact that they are prohibited. Does it necessarily follow that the prohibition should be continued? When the constitution was adopted, it was never contemplated by its framers that an institution of this sort would ever be erected.

The inmates of the home are neither criminals, lunatics nor imbeciles, and only such were supported "in whole or in part" by the state then. Two years of very close relation with the Soldiers' home has given me, I think, a very good understanding of the men who reside there, and I change any previous opinion into any community with the state of Michigan and take an equal number of citizens whose average deportment and intelligence is superior to the inmates. True, there are a few who deport themselves in such manner as to bring odium upon all, but this is unjust.

The report says Mr. White was hissed, who will, by hissing, try to strangle free speech in or out of the legislature. But what are we to think of the man who will attempt to disfranchise 400 citizens of the United States? What excuse can be offered for the conduct of a legislature who will oppose a resolution to submit to the people the privilege of amending the constitution to prevent the disfranchisement of those citizens? Mr. White says that the inmates of the home are but tools in the hands of the republicans. If this statement was true, Mr. White can, of course, tell the world who are the individuals who have handled the tools and when they were handled.

It is true that a majority of the men have generally voted the republican ticket, but that is no reason they should be disfranchised. I well remember when to be a democrat in northern Michigan was, in the eyes of the republican politicians, a crime. That very fact made me a democrat fighter twenty-five years ago. But Mr. White does not state the facts, and he ought to know it. During the last two years the home has been in charge of Maj. J. A. McKee, an uncompromising democrat. That he had the confidence of all the men is evidenced by the fact that before his retirement they unanimously petitioned for his retention and on his taking leave of them, presented him with an elegant present. With all his power over them, with all their love for him, he was unable to control their votes for his party. This proves that they exercised their own best judgment, that the ballot cast by them was the result of their own free choice. It is claimed that the members of the home are a menace to the taxpayers of Grand Rapids township. The home has been occupied nearly seven years; great public improvements have been made during that time, but no complaint so far has been made that the interests of the people have been affected by the veterans.

The amendment will be submitted. It will be adopted. The people of Michigan are divided among all political parties, but the patriotism that almost unanimously elected the home and sustained it so consistently will not disfranchise the men who, by reason of wounds received and disease contracted in the defense of a constitutional government, by reason of which they are incapacitated from labor, are deprived of the sacred right to vote, which, but for their efforts, those who oppose it might not enjoy today.

L. G. Rutherford.

TRAVEL IS LIGHT.

Only a Very Few Persons Going to the World's Fair.

So far as the local railroads are concerned the world's fair travel is the greatest and greatest failure of the season. There has been no business whatever, thus far. The number of tickets sold to Chicago shows a decrease rather than any increase. Only the ordinary run of persons are going over, and few of those are world's fair tourists. The same condition of affairs exists along the entire line of all the roads running into the city. The railroad of friends who are not disappointed because they did not expect much of any trade the first few weeks the fair was open. Then they believe that much of the business is due to the fact that the weather is so hot and the sun shines for a week or two, and people have confidence that the exhibition is so nearly completed that they will not miss any of the best features. The trouble will pick up, but they admit that the outlook at present is not very encouraging, and that the world's fair travel will be far in excess of the first predictions.

NEW SOCIAL CLUB.

One to Be Formed for the East End by K. of P's.

A movement is on foot to organize an other social club. This time it will be composed of members of the order of Knights of Pythias, with headquarters in the east end. Important lodge the youngest K. of P. organization in the city purchased a lot near the corner of Wealthy avenue and East street on which to erect a block containing a lodge room, but the members have decided to defer building and instead will remodel the residence now on the site into a club house, with a lodge room on the second floor. Work has already begun. A cottage or addition to the house will be built for the residence of a man and his wife who will be placed in charge of the building. It is proposed to organize a club with a membership composed of Knights of Pythias to occupy this club room, which will be furnished with some Grandstanding club furniture bought by the lodge at the time of the sale. Arrangements will be made for serving meals in the club room.

COUNTY FUNDS ARE LOW.

Not Enough in the Depository to Pay the State Tax.

The $60,000 of state tax collected in Kent county, which under the new law should have been paid to the state March 10, has not yet been paid, and Kent county is paying 6 per cent interest on the deficit. It is costing the taxpayers of the county $200 per month to keep up this interest. County Treasurer Stebbins was asked yesterday why the state tax had not been paid over, and he replied that there was not enough money on hand with which to pay it. "There is but about $45,000 in the county depository," said he, "and there must, of course, be a considerable amount on hand to meet daily expenses. The state tax will be paid as soon as the liquor tax is collected. There is about $30,000 coming to the county from this source, which will soon be in, and then the state tax can be paid over." Mr. Stebbins says it would have cost the same rate to have borrowed the money and paid the tax on March 10 as the county is compelled to pay the state. The county was in debt so that the money collected for state taxes has been paid out for other purposes. The county has not yet settled with the city on state and county taxes, and that should be done before it settles with the state.

Inquiry at the Kent County Savings bank, the county depository, showed that there is, in fact, but $27,000 at present to the credit of the county. The interest on this balance goes to the county, under the new law, instead of into the pocket of the treasurer, as it formerly did. It will be two or three weeks before the last tax is all paid in and a settlement with the auditor general made.

Buried by the County.

After securing but one witness in the inquest on the remains of Clayton L. Williamson, whose body was taken out of the west side canal, the jury returned a verdict that the deceased was either drowned or committed suicide. C. M. Baker testified that he had known the dead man for seven years. He and his wife had been separated for over a year, and about three years ago she obtained a divorce and remarried. His 7-year-old boy died at about the same time.

These troubles were evidently the cause of his despondency which grew upon him. He threatened to commit suicide several times. Witness had not seen him since January.

A dispatch was received yesterday from his parents in Ashland, Illinois, stating that his father was very ill and financially unable to care for the remains, so he will be buried at county expense.

RICH TO LOOK UPON

Handsome Places of John Callahan and R. S. Brown.

GRAND OPENING LAST NIGHT

The Most Elaborate and Complete Sample Room and Cigar Emporium in Western Michigan.

That popular and old time expression, "A thing of beauty is a joy forever," might be used with success in connection with the establishment located at the corner of Monroe and Waterloo streets, which was opened to the public last night. The interior of the premises is certainly a thing of beauty and to its owners should be a joy forever.

The new sample room of John Callahan and cigar emporium of R. S. Brown were thrown open to the public for the first time last night. The event has been a principal topic among certain classes of gentlemen for some time past, and all have anxiously awaited for the opening announcement.

At almost any hour of the evening a jostling, pushing crowd of visitors were within the building. Each and every one was a friend of the hosts and each one fervently wished the gentlemen good speed with their new bark which they had just launched upon the sea of business life. The premises were beautifully decorated for the event with flowers and plants, and the host called the visitor made an elaborate and the portals and gazed about him, was "What a bower of beauty." The scene was an animated one and formed a picture so vivid that it will not soon be forgotten. One of the principal features of the affair was an elegant collection of cigars collected from state taxes has been paid out for other purposes. The county has not yet settled with the city on state and county taxes, and that should be done before it settles with the state.

aided over the bar. His friends are numerous and not one will be found but what will wish Mr. Callahan success in his new venture. He received his friends last night in what is by all odds the grandest and most magnificent sample room in western Michigan. The location is in the best and most desirable place in the city and to be appreciated the place must be visited and a personal inspection made. Mr. Callahan has spared neither time or expense in making his establishment what it is. The bar fixtures, etc., are models of perfection and compare favorably with the latest and the best in New York city. The display of cut glassware is a magnificent one and showed many revelations to the thousands that paid their respects to the proprietor last night. Mr. Callahan personally selected this stock in Chicago, and each piece purchased with the greatest care. No sample room in the city can boast of as elaborate appointments. Mr. Callahan has all the most modern conveniences behind his bar. His stock rooms and refrigerators are complete and convenient and especially manufactured for him and under his own plans and specifications. Such can also be said of his sideboard, liquor case, back bar (which has a cold storage apparatus in connection) and his work board, all of which are perfect in every respect. A most pleasing effect is the cut glass design in wine, beer and soda glasses, which attract universal attention. The private office is a pretty little nook and contains all the conveniences necessary to the proprietor. Each visitor to the establishment greatly admired the $5,000 still painting in oil, entitled "Changes of Time." Much has been written lately regarding this masterpiece of art, and the magnificent work was always the center of an admiring group. Mr. Callahan will handle only the standard imported brands, guns and wines, and Kentucky bourbon and eastern rye whiskey. His stock will always be the best and his prices second to none in the state. Charles Post, late of the Peninsular club, will assist Mr. Callahan in his work.

At Brower's Billiard Parlor. Leading from the sample room is a handsome and expensive staircase, which carries the visitor to the second morning sun. This staircase forms one entrance into Al Brower's billiard parlor. Mr. Brower is well known in Grand Rapids, and his place of business is said to be one of the best in the state. With the opening of the new establishment, a gala occasion. With that idea in view he for some time past has had a large force of men engaged in making great improvements in his billiard parlor. Last night several small details were completed, not through with his changes. Mr. Brower received his friends in apartments that are not only handsome and attractive, but complete in every department. A metamorphosis has taken place and a regular visitor to the parlor is surprised at the wonderful changes made. Another floor has been added to Mr. Brower's place of business, which will be greatly appreciated by the patrons. Tables have been placed on the second floor and now more space is given a billiard or pool player while engaged in a game. The walls and ceiling of the room have been redecorated and repainted and several other decided improvements made. A new department added is a fine lunch counter, where at all hours substantial and nicely prepared eatables can be secured. Mr. Brower can justly be proud of his billiard parlor. The new improvements, as well as any in the state and the tables, both billiard and pool, are second to none in the city. Lovers of the gentleman's game will appreciate the establishment Mr. Brower has placed before the public.

SECOND TO NONE. The Handsome Sample Room Managed by C. W. Johnston.

One of the most recent additions to the list of sample rooms located in Grand Rapids is the one managed by Charles W. Johnston, at No. 116 Canal street. True it is, that the city has a surfeit of establishments that come under the head of sample rooms, but the number that are really first-class in every respect and would be called a sample room, is very few. The new establishment, so small that it printed would appear ridiculous to the reader.

A gentleman appreciates a handsome, elaborate sample room. He enjoys quaffing beverages in such a place. Grog shops are an abomination to him, and an occasion has arisen where he has refrained from "tipping his elbow" because a desirable place to do so was not at hand.

Of the finest and most complete sample rooms in the state, none will show more attractiveness or richness of appointments than the one managed by C. W. Johnston. It is a perfect little bower of beauty. The walls and ceilings are richly colored in handsome designs on a combination of tin and zinc. The fixtures, by all odds the handsomest in the city, were manufactured by the well known R. Kothschick & Co., Cincinnati, Ohio, and are made of quarter-sawn oak. The laces are marble and the top of mahogany. The whole interior presents a striking appearance and one long to be remembered. The prettiest feature of the establishment is the display of cut glassware on the main wall, in marble and silk plush, the first to be shown in the city. Mr. Johnston has all the modern conveniences in the sample room, and in many cases he has certain conveniences behind the bar that were never dreamed of in Grand Rapids. Space will not permit a detailed mention of each and every important feature of the sample room, but suffice it to say no similar institution in the city can boast of as many conveniences and more say contrivances. One thing though, that will not be forgotten by the patrons is a dish counter. In this connection it would not be amiss to say that there are neither electric bells or speaking tubes.

A grand specialty offered the merchants and clerks is a splendid business man's lunch served in the parlor until 10:30 p. m. night daily. A thoroughly competent cook is employed and the eatables he serves are of the very best. Mr. Johnston has the only steam table in any sample room in the city. In the near future it is expected that the adjoining building will be erected, which will contain a library and reading room, especially adapted for the uses of the working man.

"The Cottage," as Mr. Johnston has christened the establishment he manages, is a pleasant place to visit, order always prompt and the service is of the highest quality. The stock is well selected, the sample room is first-class in every respect and only the very best trade is catered to.

The stock of beverages is one of the largest and best assorted in the city. Only the very choicest will be procured and handled. The stock is well selected, the sample room is first-class in every respect and only the very best trade is catered to.

meat, a little feature his patrons will appreciate.

RECENT IMPROVEMENTS.

The Wholesale Wine and Liquor House of Alex. Kennedy.

Of the many improvements made by merchants in business places in different parts of the city this spring none are more noteworthy than those made recently by Alexander Kennedy in his establishment located at the corner of Louis and Waterloo streets. Decorations and carpenters have made a wonderful change of the interior of the ground floor, and as a result one of the largest, best and most complete show rooms in the city is now used by Mr. Kennedy in displaying his goods. The walls, and ceiling are neatly and tastefully decorated, and present a cozy and home-like appearance to the visitor. The offices located in the front of the building are large and well equipped.

Mr. Kennedy has been in business in Grand Rapids since 1882 and has always enjoyed a lucrative patronage. His great knowledge of the liquor industry has aided him materially in bringing his business to a successful point. His stock of goods is a large and varied one, and embraces all the best and most desirable brands of wines and liquors. A feature of his stock is straight whiskies in bond or free.

THIS IS THE WAY To See the World's Fair at a Reasonable Expense.

Capt. H. O. Rose of Petoskey was in the city yesterday on business connected with the world's fair. Captain Rose has a scheme for carrying persons to the fair and boarding them while there at a rate far below the lowest figure fixed by the most economical person who expects to visit the great exposition. For $40 he will carry a passenger by the steamer City of Grand Rapids to Chicago, allow him to take two meals daily and sleep on the boat and furnish free transportation from the steamer's dock to the gates of Jackson Park for nine days. The first trip will be made May 25 from Charlevoix, Harbor Springs and Petoskey, but the steamer will make Muskegon, Grand Haven or other ports for passengers who wish to avail themselves of this excellent and economical method of seeing the fair. Those who wish to inform themselves should address Capt. H. O. Rose, Petoskey. One of the advantages of making the trip in this way is that there is no time lost in hunting up a hotel after arriving in Chicago. The steamer will lie at a dock so that passengers may come and go as they please, and the best and most crowded and dusty cars may be avoided and the trip made at a cost which is exceedingly low.

What His Friends Say.

One of the large number of friends of Charles W. Johnston, manager of "The Cottage" sample rooms at No. 116 Canal street, was heard to remark yesterday: "Well, Charlie has been abused far more than the public realizes. He managed a fine summer resort at Fred's lake and just as he was about to enjoy the results of his labor, fire carried away his establishment. Almost every one is pestered on the trouble he experienced while temporarily located at the corner of Waterloo and Monroe streets, of his great loss of time and money there, and now it seems hard that some one else should receive a license for the same place when really the first number on Water, too street commences at Mr. Kelly's saloon. This man has been unfortunate, to say the least, but the worst trouble he has experienced was being arrested for obtaining money under false pretenses. Captain Summers and Lieutenant Blake made the complaint, and the case, I believe, comes up before Judge Burlingame tomorrow morning."

H. F. Mills of No. 254 East Bridge street, who held a $2,000 policy in the Covenant Mutual Benefit association of Galesburg, Illinois, has received through their state agent, W. E. Yates, $1,000 on a disability claim. This company pays one-half the amount of policy in event of disability, thus giving the insured a benefit while living.
